

Abstract

A novel grounding rod driver comprising: a conically shaped member having a distal opening at its narrow end and axially extending channel through its center so as to facilitate attachment to the striking end of a grounding rod; a disk shaped anvil member affixed to the proximal wide end of the conical member for facilitating the driving of the grounding rod; a pivotable handle affixed to the conical shaped member to hold and support the driver.